Dear Friends of the UMass Boston Labor Resource Center,

We write to ask that your organization co-sponsor and help publicize an exciting event:

Building Labor Solidarity between Mexico and the United States.

The event will be open to the public and held at UMass Boston on October 12th from 5:30 to 7:30pm in University Hall (Room 2-2110).

It will feature José Luis Granados Ceja, a journalist and political analyst based in Mexico City who is a staff writer with Venezuela Analysis, covering regional and international issues, and the author of a monthly opinion column for the Mexico Solidarity Project. He has a recent, insightful, piece in The Nation on electoral reforms in Mexico: <https://www.thenation.com/article/world/protest-mexico-amlo-ine/>

Granados Ceja will speak on issues of central importance to the labor movement in the United States, including the place of the border, migration, trade, drugs, and job creation in shaping not only the lives of workers in both countries, but the prospects of cross-border solidarity moving forward.

Please let us know if you would be willing to co-sponsor by helping promote this important event.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read 'Steve Striffler', written over a light blue circular stamp.
